

Corporate Partners, Thank You for Supporting the AWD Mission!

Simple ways companies can support the AWD mission:

- Contribute directly via the AWD Charitable Contribution Portal: diversityinwholesaling.com/contribute
- Introduce AWD to all black wholesalers, key accounts & advanced sales employees at your firm.
 - They are already members: diversityinwholesaling.com/members | /about-us
- Instruct your social media team to have your firm follow AWD on LinkedIn, YouTube, Facebook and X.
 - AWD will follow your firm in return.
- Post all wholesaling, key accounts, advanced sales & internship job openings to the AWD Job Board
 - Unlimited Posting or Posting Packages available via Corporate Sponsorship (see below).
 - À-la-carte posting via our job posting links: Pay \$299 to Post One Job, then Post-a-Job!

Contribution Accounting

100% of all corporate and individual contributions are tax-deductible and go toward AWD's general operating expenses. Charitable contributions are not payment for services.

AWD Annual Conference & Career Fair

Each year AWD holds an Annual Conference, which is an invitation-only event for members, sponsor firms, and select vendor partners. Firm sponsorship, as outlined above, determines the number of firm-representative invites you receive. The Career Fair is open to the public, in-person and online.

- Day One - Black Women's Wholesaler Retreat / Conference Opening Reception
 - The Black Women's Wholesaler Retreat features content exclusive to AWD Member women.
 - The conference reception is open to all conference attendees and vendors.
- Day Two – Sponsor Symposium / Boot Camp Competition / Awards Dinner
 - All day two programming is open to all conference attendees and vendors.
- Day Three – Member Assembly / Hybrid Career Fair / Conference Closing Reception
 - The member assembly features content exclusive to AWD members.
 - The career fair is open to all (current students, recent graduates, career changers, and the public).
 - The closing reception is open to all conference attendees and vendors.

The AWD Annual Conference is a business building & job skill enrichment event designed to help your AWD member employees perform better at their jobs, reaffirm and improve their love for the wholesaling career path, and energize them to outperform and advance when they return to work from the conference. We ask ALL firms, sponsors or not, to:

- Encourage their AWD member associates to attend.
- Not require their AWD members' use of PTO to attend.
- Cover their AWD members' transportation and lodging expenses to attend.

WHO WE ARE

The Association for Wholesaling Diversity \(AWD\) began in February 2016 as a like-minded group of African American external wholesalers working in the financial services industry. Straightaway, we grew rapidly via word-of-mouth and the business networking platform LinkedIn, by identifying more and more black financial services external wholesalers from across the United States. Our networking efforts quickly transformed into the sharing of universal wholesaling best practices and sales ideas. As a result, we soon welcomed black wholesalers at the internal and entry-level into our network, since many of them sought to become externals and would benefit from our network & idea-sharing efforts. We then sought out the rare black wholesaling industry sales managers to inspire and help prepare our members for that stage of a successful wholesaling career.

Over the years, AWD implemented a member-to-member mentor program, developed and delivered a broad array of wholesaler development curricula, launched a professional designation scholarship program, welcomed black key accounts & advanced planning personnel into our broader collective, established both

Asian-American & Latin-American outreach initiatives, and helped over 250 black professionals secure new or better roles in our industry. Our black student recruitment initiative now lies at the core of our mission, as we partner with all HBCUs and our members' alma maters to identify black students with an interest in finance and/or sales.

Our 501(c)(3) delivers a robust Wholesaling Development Program \(WDP\), the first program of its kind, created exclusively for black college students who receive their FINRA SIE certification and multiple job offers upon program completion. Our inaugural WDP class was taught by personnel from our ally the Coalition for Equity in Wholesaling. WDP classes are now taught by AWD members, as we believe it is important that black students learn from subject matter experts that look and sound like them. AWD Campus Visits feature AWD members presenting, live or virtually per institutional preference, to student groups at academic institutions throughout North America, about financial services wholesaling as a career path.

There are no costs to students for access to any AWD resource (mentorship, WDP, campus visits, job fairs, etc.). AWD shares current wholesaling & entry level job openings with all job seekers via multiple forums, including our public access AWD Career Center. We also host job seeker resumes on our AWD Resume Database. AWD has identified over 600 members, and we continue to grow by attracting more black talent to the world of financial services wholesaling through our outreach efforts. AWD community-building and community-strengthening efforts help your firm and our industry retain black talent.

WHY WE ARE

Industry data has indicated that black individuals comprise less than 4% of financial services wholesalers, with the majority of those being at the internal wholesaler and entry-level stage of their careers. Black sales managers comprise fewer than half of 1% of industry sales managers. The United States Census Bureau advises that black individuals comprised 12.4% of the United States population as of 2019. AWD aims to narrow these gaps of representation within our industry.
